I want to thank all 20 + members who attended the December Meeting. There was a good arrangement of show and tell projects and amid the confusion of what consists of a "Layered" project. Yes, we did have a few versions as you'll read and view in pages to come.

CCW wishes to thank Eric Holmquist of Connecticut for his presentation of Colored and Pierced Bowls. If all goes well, we can expect to see Eric next December and he'll be doing his full demo, probably in George Paes' Shop.

Here's a bit more info on the luncheon. Cost is $20.00 per person. Your check can be sent to

It is the hope that our spouses bring for display and discussion their wares of hobby. Be reminded that we are lucky to have many talented spouses.

Many Avocado logs were distributed this month, We know that they are somewhat green, so turnings from them should show up in months to come. Do not be alarmed if you find a small piece of colored plastic inserted in them, word is, It's a method of injecting Fertilizer and Herbicides. Gerald Davis has already submitted a small bowl with the said plastic. It adds color and as we turners know, it'll never be duplicated.

A new book has been turned into the library and was gobbled up by Dan Ross. I'm sure that it will make for good reading. The Book was a donation in return for our donation to the AAW Grant fund. It almost can be considered a history of Woodturning and the AAW. I strongly urge you get in line for it, Photography is great giving some great ideas for future projects. I neglect to give you the title as I don't remember it Word for Word.

Several of the photos in today's edition are the works of John Long. My camera battery was wearing down so many photos were too dark to copy

The Slo Art Museum is holding until Dec. 30th several events worth mentioning. The Santa Ynez Valley Woodworkers Guild is on display with high level furniture and turnings, including the work of Mike Magrill and George Paes. In the Art Craft Market you'll find turnings by our seldom seen but always missed Barry Lundgren. The Art Craft Market is a good resource for Christmas shopping.

The woodturners Of Olympia Washington will be holding a Mini symposium and work shop on the days of July 27 thru 31st. more info can be found at www.woodturnersofolympia.org If you are planning any travel in that direction you might consider giving it a look. The featured turner will be John Jordan.

As discussed Saturday, I will order 30, 12" pepper mill kits to be the challenge project for February. Your CCW will foot the bill. That should give you more than enough time to design a VERY DIFFERENT pepper mill. A secret ballot vote will decide the winner of the most UNIQUE Pepper mill and will receive 7 free tickets to the monthly drawing.
